

Mooncoin is an altcoin originally released at the end of 2013 with the idea that there is one coin for every millimetre between the earth and the moon (384 billion). Many were sceptical of the large number of coins in the beginning, and although there was no pre-mining of the coin done, the potential mining rewards were extremely large (0 to 2 million for the first 100,000 blocks, scaling down to a fixed 29531 at block 384,401). The idea was to have enough coins for everyone, making this a coin created and mined by the people, for the people.

The initial reception according to the first Announcement thread (link), was the typical responses of focus around the financial potential of the coin, and also scepticism about it being a dogecoin clone. None of the features that are in the works today were planned, and it offered little incentive to invest or mine apart from being something new, and having exceptionally large block rewards. Like most coins released in this era, it seems to have been a victim of mass hype, with little lasting value. The name also played a large factor in early interest, with a relation to a coin "mooning" (rising in value quickly over a short period of time).

A quote from user Paralich, "This seems to be the most hyped up launch I've seen so far, at least the difficulty will be to the moon in no time"

<https://bitcointalk.org/index.php?topic=389403.msg4214294#msg4214294>

A windows Qt wallet wasn't released before launch due to Deaconboogie's stance on not releasing the source code before launch due to numerous coins failing for this reason. Many people didn't understand this and it created a lot of initial concern for the coin's future. The majority were not worried due to the numerous mining pools available from the beginning. Many of the initial posts in the announcement thread were aimed at mining as the rewards were too high to ignore, and easily the best way to initially obtain mooncoin. There was a lot of concern over heavy forking of the blockchain due to all of the mining pools interested in mooncoin. As user goldbishop puts it "over 20 pools...WTF?" <https://bitcointalk.org/index.php?topic=389403.msg4222662#msg4222662>

Another reason why there was such a demand for the Qt wallet was there were many people capable of solo mining from the start and wanted to begin there before joining the pools.

Quote from BC-trader, "honestly what happened to the days a coin could come out and a pool would only show up hours later....now there are 20 pools ready to jump on this coin the second it's released.... 🤔" probably will be forked to hell and back 🤔"

<https://bitcointalk.org/index.php?action=reporttm;topic=389403.536;msg=4223094>

Initial launch was delayed by 10 minutes. As many users put "so much for a shenanigan free launch" which was quoted by the developer in the OP. It was further delayed due to deaconboogie's cable modem apparently getting DDOS'd directly at launch. Calls of scamming and premining began to build up as sceptism about the coins legitimacy grew.

Quote by Gamer67 "This is bullshit. You gave mutlipool exclusive premine rights because you (OP) are mining there. WTF"

<https://bitcointalk.org/index.php?topic=389403.msg4224017#msg4224017>

Source was released 37 minutes late at <https://github.com/realmooncoin/mooncoin>

However, by this point many people were ready to bail and move onto other alt coins.

Deaconboogie was not a windows developer, hence the lack of a qt wallet at release.

Another quote by BC-trader, “🤔 This is a typical coin launch, it's always a massive disaster, it smooths out after a large amount of people give up and go back to other coins...”

User buddynuno replies to Deaconboogie "So your saying none of this its your fault? How do you explain the only pool that was going down and crashing was the first one to accept hashing? The other pools were up and I had them lined up to start mining and i could not connect to any of them for like around 1 hour after the launch time! People didnt even know what was the port to multipool! And poor you im guessing you dont mind to start to make giveaways with the few coins you have to repair all this mess and make emends do you?"

Argument against the premine theory

<https://bitcointalk.org/index.php?topic=389403.msg4226413#msg4226413>

Apparently the source was only released to multipool first to prevent forking

<https://bitcointalk.org/index.php?topic=389403.msg4227525#msg4227525>

All of this happened in the first 24 hours. A complete roller coaster of a day. Once the Qt wallet got updated from being a DOGE clone people seemed to calm down a bit and rationality returned to the messages.
